The Institute for Global Financial Integrity

takes pleasure in informing you that

Ricardo Sanchez-Serrano

Executive director of Fidelis International Institute will speak on

“Is greed all you need?”

What can the Catholic Church teach the business world?”

at the Seventeenth Luxembourg Monthly Finance Lunch

Wednesday, 16th of November 2011 at the Cercle Munster

About this month's speaker:

Ricardo Sanchez Serrano is the executive director of Fidelis International Institute, an independent non-profit organization devoted to the research and promotion of ethics in the world of business and finance. Ricardo has been running Fidelis since 2009. Fidelis activities include research, ethical screening and ethical consulting. The Institute has its headquarters in Rome and operates in 5 countries.

Prior to joining Fidelis, Ricardo spent 20 years in the corporate world. He worked for +10 years in the elevator industry out of Switzerland, Portugal, and Mexico occupying finance, M&A and strategic planning positions. He also spent various years in the insurance industry and in a well-known American private equity firm. After having seen the poorest imaginable ethical practices in the private equity company he worked for, Ricardo decided to make a drastic career change and looked for a more transcendent, human-centered, ambitious professional career, this is when he joined Fidelis.

Ricardo is a Harvard MBA and an industrial engineer; he also has a Master of Philosophy with focus on the concepts of Time, Silence, and Mysticism. Ricardo lives with his wife and their three children in Rome, Italy.

Drinks are served starting at 11:30 h. The guest speaker will commence at 12:15 h.
